British Guns Fire Back In Channel Duel

Germans Renew Mass Aerial Assaults, Drop Parachuters In Midlands As Shore Batteries Exchange Blows

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 24.—British and German long-range guns engaged in a thundering duel across the English channel today as the Nazi air force renewed mass aerial assaults on Britain and dropped parachutes in night attacks on the heavily industrialized Midlands.

British artillerymen opened up with a heavy attack on Nazi "Big Bertha" emplacements on the French coast after the Germans lobbed shells into the Dover area and sent waves of planes across the English coast.

One wave of 55 German planes crossed the southeast coast toward London.

London went to work to the sound of screaming air raid alarms, but nothing happened here and the all-clear signal sounded 51 minutes later. The alarm sounded at 8:24 a. m., catching thousands of Londoners hurrying to work.

Bombers Turned Back
An earlier unconfirmed report said the Germans had bombed the London area in the second night attack in 24 hours, but the air ministry said a wave of German bombers had been turned back before reaching the city's outskirts.

During the prolonged coastal shelling numerous dogfights developed over the channel and a British Spitfire downed a German Messerschmitt, apparently "spotting" for the German guns across from Dover. The plane plunged into the sea near the English shore.

A violent explosion at 10 a. m. in the area where shells fell during Thursday night's German bombardment of Dover heralded the beginning of today's shelling. The roar of the blast scarcely had died when British naval guns set up on the shore began firing at German positions across the suinit channel.

The counterfire of the British batteries died as anti-aircraft guns and then British fighters, went into action against German fighters.

WILL REGISTER ALIENS IN AREA

Postoffice Staff Ready to Begin U. S. Assignment Tuesday

Machinery was set in motion today at the postoffice for the registration and fingerprinting of alien residents of Salem and neighboring areas, scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The work has been ordered by the Department of Justice's immigration and naturalization service as the result of the Alien Registration Act, passed by Congress June 28.

The registration, which is nationwide, will continue for four months. All aliens will be registered. Postmaster A. E. Beardmore explained, but only those 14 years of age and older will be fingerprinted.

Offices are being set up on the second floor of the Salem postoffice and the staff to do the work will be selected from the eligible list of temporary postal employees.

Aliens calling at the postoffice Saturday will be issued preliminary questionnaires which they will take home with them to fill in the answers and then return. The fingerprinting will follow.

The alien registration act provides that any alien who willfully fails to register and make application to be fingerprinted, or any parent or guardian who fails to make such application for a minor, shall, upon conviction be fined not to exceed $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both.

TRANSYLVANIA PARLEY ENDS

Hungarian - Rumanian Conference Terminates In Collapse

(By Associated Press)
TURNU-SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 24.—The Hungarian-Rumanian conference over Transylvania collapsed today.

The two delegations, admitting failure to find a common ground for continuing the negotiations, prepared to depart for Bucharest and Budapest.

Fail to Reply

The collapse of the axis-inspired attempt to arrive at a friendly settlement of Hungary's claims to the 35,000-square mile province of Transylvania, which Rumania has held since the World war, came after the Rumanians failed to give a satisfactory reply to a Hungarian demand for some concrete territorial concessions.

The Hungarians had demanded approximately two-thirds of the province.

The Rumanians refused and offered to exchange minority populations instead.

Sifting of Rumania's attitude toward the negotiations was seen in the calling up of army reserves, the appointment of a new chief and vice chief of the Rumanian general staff, and the offer of five seats in the government to the anti-revisionist group of Julius Maniu, the Peasant party leader.

The army appointments were understood to oppose any cession of Transylvanian territory.

Rejects Proffered Posts

Maniu, however, was understood to have rejected the proffered cabinet posts unless King Carol's new totalitarian party is dissolved.

At Craiova, meanwhile, where Rumanians are negotiating with Bulgarians over southern Dobruja, it was reported the Rumanians have proposed to cede all of the town of Silistra, on the Danube, provided Bulgaria creates a free zone at the port of Balic, on the Black sea, for Rumania, with an international highway leading from it to the Rumanian Black sea port of Constanta.

A Hungarian spokesman said his country had asked for about two-thirds of Transylvania's 35,000 square miles.

HARRY HOPKINS TO QUIT SOON

Ill Health To Force Cabinet Resignation; May Become Librarian At Hyde Park

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Slender, energetic Harry L. Hopkins, for six years chief of federal relief spending and for a year and a half secretary of commerce, will resign from the cabinet soon because of ill health.

The resignation will remove from President Roosevelt's official family one of his closest friends and advisers and will add another vacancy to the list of high government offices presently or prospectively unfilled.

Hopkins, it was reported, may take the position of librarian at the Hyde Park, N. Y., library, recently built to house the President's papers and book collection and expected to be opened next spring. It was learned definitely that he will not enter business.

He has been in ill health for many months. Able to put in six hours a day at his desk, he is known to have felt that a cabinet officer should be capable of working 12 hours or more without a letup. Recently he attended the Democratic convention in Chicago as Mr. Roosevelt's personal representative. Friends said the long hours of activity there were a heavy drain on his resources of energy.

Burke-Wadsworth Measure's Approval Next Week Predicted

TO PROVIDE FOR IMMEDIATE DRAFT

Roosevelt's Call for Action Is Expected To Speed Vote

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Administration strategists predicted today that the senate would approve the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill next week by a margin of at least 10 votes and in a form calling for immediate conscription.

These leaders also said a rebuff of their polls, following President Roosevelt's call for speedy enactment of a selective service law that would become effective at once, indicated that a substitute bill by Senator Maloney (D. Conn.) to delay the draft until January 1 faced defeat by a margin of from two to four votes.

Debate Continues

The senate gave up its usual Saturday holiday to continue debate on the conscription measure, and a final vote on the bill "sometime next week" was predicted.

Sen. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, told reporters he had hope of getting the senate to agree to a limitation of debate and expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt's expression should hasten action.

On the other hand, Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.), an opponent of conscription, said he thought no attempt would be made to cut off debate "on a matter of this importance."

The President said yesterday that to put off the actual drafting of men might delay the whole defense program a year or two and he remarked that congress had been considering the matter since June 29 and still was talking.

May Swing Balance

Opponents of conscription conceded that Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that he was personally and absolutely opposed to postponement of compulsory military training was "key to swing the balance against Maloney's proposal to delay conscription until a system of voluntary one-year enlistments could be tried."

Senator Walsh (D. Mass.) told reporters that it seemed obvious to him that administration "pressure" would be exerted to get the bill through in its present form. As now pending, the measure would require the registration of all men from 21 through 30 years old, making them subject to call to military service, with some exemptions.

"I think the President's statement means that the Burke-Wadsworth bill will be passed," Walsh said.

Burial Lot Buyers Demand Money Back

W. A. Loudon and Rena Loudon bought 13 lots in the Columbiana County Memorial park, just north of East Liverpool in 1936 and '38. They have now filed separate actions in common pleas court in Lisbon to get their money back, the former asking for $750 and the latter for $1,500, with interest.

Both state in their petitions that they were induced to buy the burial lots, relying on the representations of the Park association that they would increase in value after installation of a chapel with a large organ with carillon chimes. They were also told they said, that here would be bird sanctuaries, and imposing columns at the entrance of the park which would add to the value of the property.

Giving Destroyers War Act, Says Vorys

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Representative Vorys (R-Ohio) suggests that the transfer of United States destroyers to Great Britain would be an act of war against Germany.

In a letter to Professor H. Gordon Hayes of Ohio State university, Columbus, Vorys objected strenuously to proposals that such a transfer be made and declared that "expert naval opinion" was that "we haven't any destroyers to spare and that 50 more destroyers would not be decisive in the present battle of England."

"Furnishing arms to a belligerent is an act of war," said Vorys. "I don't think we should join those who wage undeclared wars and I don't think we should declare war yet."

Auxiliary Elects

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Marten Merrifield of Middlefield, O., was reelected secretary of the Ladies auxiliary of the National Rural Letter Carriers association here yesterday.

PROPOSITION FOR A CONGRESSMAN

The reading of one day's debate on the conscription bill in the senate is enough to convince an ordinary constituent that the members of that body are talking for talk's sake. It has been predicted freely for more than two weeks that a vote would show a majority for the bill.

Perhaps the United States still can afford the democratic luxury of talk for talk's sake; at least there seems no way to stop it. The circumstance of prolonged debate on an issue already determined by circumstances beyond legislative control, however, suggests that in the years to come a higher congressional standard is going to be in demand.

The United States is going to have more responsibility for decisive, accurate judgment than it ever had before. The tempo and quality of legislative and executive action will need to be quickened and improved as this country takes responsibility for leadership. There is only one way this can be done.

Representatives and senators must be more concerned with the country's welfare than with their own reelection. They must abandon minority coddling. They must learn to vote according to their personal convictions, instead of according to the latest straw vote in their district and state. They must broaden their vision to become patriots instead of petty politicians.

The United States has had many congressmen who won respect and fame by acting on the conviction that a representative democracy demands more exalted service from legislators than standing with one ear to the ground—men who did what they knew to be right and took the consequences from the displaced minorities back home. Often, of course, the displaced minority dissolved of its own accord. There are congressmen like that in Washington now. There should be more.

A GOOD, SOUND RULE

While hair-splitting barristers are whetting their keen wits on the destroyer deal and choosing exactly the right hair to split, non-professionals might raise a point of order. It's this:

On June 19, congress added an amendment to a bill about national defense. The amendment provided that no military or naval weapon, ship, supplies or equipment which the government had on hand or on order shall be "sold, exchanged, transferred or otherwise disposed of" unless the chief of naval operations or the army chief of staff "shall first certify that such material is not essential to the defense of the United States."

This struck most Americans as just about the most sensible restriction congress could place on persons inclined to give away military equipment. It put the burden of decision where it should be—on the shoulders of persons charged with responsibility for national defense. If anyone in the country knows whether the material on hand can be given away when everybody is pitching in to furnish more of everything it should be the executive heads of the army and navy.

Further in view of the fact this is the latest official declaration of policy on a vital matter, persons more interested in defense than in splitting hairs wonder why Washington seems to have forgotten a law which does away with hair splitting and hair splitters. If Admiral Stark says the United States needs all the ships it has and enough more to give it a two-ocean navy, then that would seem to dispose of the destroyer question. It isn't likely he'd say anything else.

GET AN ARMY!

Just in case the reader hasn't brushed up on the relative size of armies and suspects Gen. Marshall's proposal for 1,200,000 active soldiers and a reserve of between three and four million is staggering, here are figures on other military forces as compiled by the U. S. adjutant general's office. In most cases, the figure given is too small, because it represents conditions as of last Nov. 1.

British empire—1,241,000 active, 269,000 reserve.
France—4,000,000 active, 1,263,000 reserve.
Germany—3,500,000 active, 3,350,000 reserve.
Italy—2,240,000 active, 5,175,000 reserve.
Japan—1,500,000 active, 4,771,000 reserve.
Russia—3,110,000 active, 4,040,000 reserve.
U. S.—187,886 active, 316,294 reserve.

Granted that some armies in this list aren't much stronger than the paper it takes to record their numbers, the fact remains that in a world where aggressors are on the prowl the richest nation on earth, even with 2,000,000 active soldiers (Gen. Marshall's ultimate goal) still would be stretching its luck.

OBLIGATO TO THE BIG BOOM

British reverses in Somaliland at the hands of Italy are a reminder that on the dark continent the issue of land blots out the issue of conflicting ideologies. It is just one more episode in the scramble for African exploitation rights.

In the secret treaties of 1915 which brought Italy into the World War Great Britain and France promised to satisfy the former's African demands; Italians have claimed ever since the Treaty of Versailles that they were treated shamefully.

The matter has been hashed over endlessly. Italy now is in position for a showdown, and Britain isn't. What the Africans might think about a change of hands is of no consequence. Since the latter part of the 19th century when partition of Africa into colonies and spheres of influence started, nothing has been less important than what the Africans thought about anything, presumably on the theory that Africans never were intended to think.

Europe is where they make an ersatz wool of milk because the sheep are killed to make a substitute for bacon.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, August 25

SUNDAY'S horoscope accents spiritual, mystical and cultural activities, with much gratification in such application. There are hints of untoward, disastrous adventures connected with journeys, changes, removals or in peculiar situations in which treachery or irregularity are strangely ominous. Refrain from all sorts of chances and hazards.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of upsets and upheavals, both sudden and unpredictable. It would be wise to be cautious in travel and in all manner of changes. Be governed by intuitions rather than eccentric whims.

A child born on this day may be unusually gifted in creative expression, probably in music, poetry or art of a novel or modernistic form. It will have some erratic tendencies, with leanings toward "the easiest way"—expediency rather than principle. Yet it will be spiritually inclined, strongly intuitive.

For Monday, August 26

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is rather conflicting with signs of drastic activity, with matters moving at high tempo and in aggressive attack. Rash, tempestuous and impulsive conduct may have power to undermine very expansive and productive prospects, in which superiors may be aggravated to non-cooperation. With restraint, composure and good judgment there may be real achievement.

Those whose birthday it is have prospects of some very constructive and productive activities during the year if they will but curb tendencies to rash, turbulent and overaggressive action. Well-directed force, enthusiasm and stimulated mind and energies could lead to expansion and real success. Strife, passion and over-indulgence spell defeat and grief.

A child born on this day should be talented, forceful and ardent, with really fine mentality and intentions but it may stand in need of discipline and self control.

Count that day as lost whose low descending sun find not another ambassador coming home for opening his mouth and putting his foot in it.

Mosquitoes, Says Doctor, Like Horses Best

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THESE early autumn days when the hum of anaphes is heard in the still evening air, the plaint goes up—"These mosquitoes just love me better than anything on earth." Don't flatter yourself. As a choice of diet you rank quite low in the mosquito's preferred list. Horses head the list of the kind of blood the mosquito likes, then cows.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

then pigs, then dogs, then you, then chickens. These conclusions were arrived at by government entomologists who subjected the blood in a gorged mosquito to precipitation tests which make it possible to tell what animal it came from.

Do incubator babies attain full development or are they likely to be undersized?

Infants born at seven to eight months have such a low vitality that if they are handled in the ordinary way they survive but a few weeks. The incubator takes the place of the mother's womb—poorly, of course, but for practical purposes in a good percentage of cases effectively. It provides an even temperature and other protection. The two other problems of the premature infant are to keep it breathing and to provide nourishment.

The breathing center is not well developed in prematurity because such infants were not prepared yet for an atmospheric existence. Sucking and swallowing reflexes are also at low ebb, and digestion poor, so feeding is always difficult to manage.

If these are overcome, however, the premature infant develops quite naturally. There is a lag in development in the first few months, and nutritional diseases, such as anemia, rickets and tetany, are frequent. "By the end of the first year," wrote Holt and Howland, "many have compensated for their early handicaps and are as large as other infants. There seems to be no lasting result produced by prematurity."

The influences that make for undersize or produce midgets are due to constitutional hereditary causes not necessarily connected with prematurity.

What are the commonest causes of painful, weak feet? Bad shoes! The barefoot savage never has broken arches, while among shoe wearing civilians thirty out of every hundred rejections for army service are due to flat feet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A. D.—"Will you please explain something? If a person has tuberculosis and it is said to be 'inactive,' what does it mean? What is the meaning of active and inactive tuberculosis? Can a person with inactive tuberculosis be cured? And could you tell me if it is possible for other people to get the disease from that person?"

Answer—Inactive tuberculosis is defined as tuberculosis in which the disease is not progressing and no germs can be found in the sputum or from stomach washings. It is really the stage of active tuberculosis in which cure has begun. If we accept the definition literally, that there are no germs being cast out, other people cannot get the disease from a person with inactive tuberculosis.

J. E.—"Please tell me what I can eat in place of meat in a reducing diet. I have always had an aversion to meat and have never eaten it. In place of it I have eaten cheese. I can eat fish."

Answer—Either cheese or fish will take the place of meat to a certain extent. Also some vegetables have a high protein content, such as beans, peas, wheat and oatmeal.

M. F.—"Please tell me if nausea can be caused by nervousness."

Answer—Nausea is a symptom can be caused by nervousness and nausea is one which is most easily excited in this way. If by nervousness is meant any emotional disturbance or imbalance, it must be evident that nausea can be caused in this way. The common phrase "It made me sick at my stomach" is an indication of how frequent the association is.

C. H.—"What are the seven organs of the abdomen, and also the ten nerves of the body?"

Answer—This sounds as if the questioner had been reading a Chinese or chiropractic book of medicine. To name only eleven organs there are, in the abdomen, the stomach, small intestine, appendix, colon, liver, two kidneys, two adrenals, spleen, and pancreas. There are several thousand nerves in the body.

May I make a final plea—won't the factories take applications and hire men in the order of their application for work, with regard of course, to their trade and ability? Won't some shops take in apprentices to skilled labor they so badly need? Believe me, many would work for little, or nothing, to learn. A SALEMITE

OUR READERS

SEEKING WORK

Editor, The News:
I am writing as the wife of only one of the many unemployed in Salem—these are not my thoughts alone but observations I have made, and what others have told me in the last ten years.

I wonder if the employment offices know what they could do to at least to encourage the rise of spirits after a call at one plant where the men are treated courteously—then the feeling of utter frustration after a call at others where the employment men, or watchmen, are sometimes extremely rude—even surly—wouldn't they be a little helpful?

Most unemployed are not asking favors, for a job to be made for them—or for your job Mr. Employer. What they want is to be employed. What they want is to be a business, like application taken and know that they will be called when their application is next in the file.

At present every shop gives the same answer, "There may be something later," they take someone who happens to be waiting when they need him, or call in a friend or relative of someone working. A man can't be at each mill every morning.

As it is now a man cannot take a few days, or weeks work, knowing it as such, for in doing so he will miss the daily round of the shops and the very slim hope that he will find some steady work.

I consider my husband and myself good citizens of Salem. Each year I have given to the Community Chest, Red Cross, bought Christmas and Easter Seals, attended all High school sports events, tried to attend and boost the events where buying tickets helped a Salem organization, and we have each given time where soliciting or work was needed. We have spent hundreds of dollars in Salem stores, restaurants, shows and have had average hospital, doctor and dentist bills. We do not owe a cent in Salem or elsewhere. I do not say this proudly, it is what each strives to do.

New neither of us is employed. We know that in some work men are getting much overtime, that a boy can come home from college and get work for the summer, and that others just out of high school procure employment ahead of men who have been waiting for as long as five years. Since I cannot see myself living on charity either public or private, we shall have to someday pull up stakes and take a chance in another city, where, if one of us finds employment, we shall try to be good citizens, patronize their stores and try to be a little useful to that community.

May I make a final plea—won't the factories take applications and hire men in the order of their application for work, with regard of course, to their trade and ability? Won't some shops take in apprentices to skilled labor they so badly need? Believe me, many would work for little, or nothing, to learn. A SALEMITE

SWIMMING SUITS

Editor, The News:
Several times this summer, while at one of our nearby lakes, I have seen a truck come, bringing children from Fairmount Home. Always a number of youngsters did not go in the water. I talked with a little boy I recognized as a Salem child, and learned that only the ones who owned suits or had a dime to rent one could go swimming.

Now is the time when many people will dispose of their children's swimming suits as too small or not fit for another year's wear. They will be much better than those worn by many of the children I saw.

Couldn't some organization collect these bathing suits and give them to the Home next spring? I imagine they would be accepted and appreciated by those children who stood back and watched the others enjoy this healthful sport.

Germany Supplied By Russia, Is Claim

MOSCOW, Aug. 24.—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia declared today Russia was helping Germany beat the British blockade by supplying her with raw materials and in return was receiving German industrial products, including armaments.

Reviewing relations of the two powers since the signing last August of their non-aggression pact, Izvestia hailed the treaty as still "the most important factor for peace" and asserted that under the trade accord, signed three days earlier, commerce between the two nations was the greatest since the World War.

"Signing of the non-aggression pact put an end to the enmity artificially fanned by war provocateurs between Germany and the U. S. R.," Izvestia said.

"CHRISTIAN" IS SERMON TOPIC

Name Will Be Discussed By English Lutheran Minister

Rev. George D. Keister will speak on "That Name Christian" at the morning worship service at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church.

Sunday school at 9:45 (Psalm 51: 1-13). Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

Sin and sinners are very real. There are not fanciful terms that have no real meaning. Any honest and careful observer will not deny that in people and in all life there is something that causes the cause of distress and trouble. No matter what you call it, we must recognize its presence. God has given the command that our sins are to be confessed. The Bible has many examples where sinners in confessing their sins to God were given the relief and assurance that could be found nowhere else. God alone can forgive sins. No human creature can take away sin. The cleansing power which washes away our sins is divine not human.

"That Name Christian"

It is interesting to know what is the background of a name. Names have been given with reason and purpose. As time passes, they may lose their original association, but their history reminds us of the original reason that brought them into existence. Names often are given to express contempt and hate, but time may nobly bring honor where there was once dishonor. The name "Christian" is very common and too often is spoken without due consideration of its background. Too many people accept this name without being willing to follow out its serious and heavy responsibility. That name "Christian" is to be more than a passing word.

Golden Text

The Golden Text is: "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: for wisdom and might are his:.... he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding" (Daniel 2:20, 21).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God spake all these words, saying:.... I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.... Thou shalt have no other gods before Me" (Exodus 20:1-3).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me" (Exodus 20:3). The First Commandment is my favorite text. It demonstrates Christian Science. It inculcates the trinity of God, Spirit, Mind; it signifies that man shall have no other spirit or mind but God, eternal good, and that all men shall have one Mind" (p. 349).

The society maintains a reading room at 136 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. Open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday.

"Flying Blind" by VERA BROWN

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

It was later than Judith realized before she managed to break away from the party with the remark, "It's a long trip over to Newark."

Sonny eyed her as though she were looking at her for the first time, had forgotten she was one of the party: "I should think you'd prefer to live over there."

"I would, but it's better for Tex to be close to the airport."

"You devoted wives! I'm afraid I wouldn't be that self-sacrificing. You should make him move—and like it."

Judith did not explain that Tex would have been willing to take the long daily trips to Newark Airport, but she would not hear of it.

"You've got to stay, Michael. I won't hear of your going."

Put she said good night to Judith pretty and asked her to join her for luncheon soon. Judith murmured the usual polite things, and Dudley escorted her to the door.

"I won't let you go to Pennsylvania station with me Mr. Dudley. It's just silly."

"Silly or not, I'm going. Besides, it will do Sonia good for me to rebel. She likes to run people."

In the cab Dudley laughed softly to himself. "Women are marvelous," he remarked. "She gave you quite a half hour!"

"What do you mean?" Judith's cheeks flushed.

"You know what I mean. She threw in the old harpoon at every chance. She wants to monopolize my attention."

He touched Judith's arm. "Don't misunderstand. I'm not inferring she's interested in me—only in having me, and five more, dance at the same time when she speaks. But forget it. Will you come in again some time for dinner?"

"I'd like to so much."

"Then that's settled. Think about that vacation for you and Tex. A couple of weeks would do wonders for both of you."

Judith bowed as the train whisked her home. At the station she got a cab, was at the apartment in ten minutes. It had been a nice evening, regardless of Sonia. As for Dudley she decided he was a darling.

When Judith finally unlocked the door of her apartment she was amazed to find the lights on—and Tex sprawled on the davenport asleep, or pretending to be asleep.

"Tex!" Judith dropped her bag and gloves on a chair, rushed to the davenport and was on her knees. "Why didn't you let me know you were coming?"

He had his arm thrown across his face, a favorite position when he slept. She kissed a blond eyebrow, all that was visible.

He opened one eye. "Nice home-coming! I get!"

"Nonsense! You're not asleep at all. Kiss me!"

"Tex sat up gave her a big hug. "Why didn't you let me know you were coming?" she repeated.

"Just to see what you were doing when I was away."

"Don't be ridiculous! How is your head? What did the doctor out there say?"

"He says I'll live. I'm hungry. Is there anything to eat?"

Judith shed coat and hat, rushed into the kitchenette to see what she could find for a midnight snack. She started the coffee going.

"I'd planned such a nice dinner for you tomorrow night—quite a celebration!"

Judith, beaming, whipped up some eggs, cut bread for toast while Tex washed up. He did not come back into the kitchenette until she called: "Come along, Soup's on!"

Tex folded his long legs under the table and Judith poured his coffee. He told her about Elsie and what had happened down south. As he ate she watched him, completely happy. He was home; everything was all right.

"What did Dudley have to say?" Tex gulped the last of his eggs.

The casual phrase came as a bombshell to Judith. Until that moment there had been no mention of Dudley. Even as he spoke, Tex knew he had made a blunder. Judith could read his thoughts. She knew that tightening of the muscles about his mouth. His eyes did not meet hers.

For of course it had been Tex who had telephoned Sonia at the club. He had talked to her before he had come home!

But she made an effort to make her voice sound natural as she answered the question which hung between them so dangerously.

"He thinks we should take a vacation. He's worried about you. Think your head injury is more serious than you realize."

"He needn't worry about my head! I'm all right. We can't afford to take a vacation right now. Everybody seems to think just because I won the race we're rich. It takes money to build a racing ship, in case you don't know. I must stick around here for some time."

His voice was peevish. Judith's heart contracted. He must care a lot for . . . Sonia!

Tex pushed back his coffee cup impatiently, lit a cigarette carefully.

"For once we've got a little money in the bank. It wouldn't come amiss to keep it there," he remarked.

"Bernuda wouldn't cost much. Or we might go west. You could get a pass. It would just mean one fare," she suggested. There was no comment from Tex.

Judith started to clear the table. "Had enough to eat? Do you want some fruit? Or there's cake?"

"No, but I could use a drink if there's anything about."

Judith protested. "It's too late, Tex."

His face flushed darkly. "What's the matter, are you trying to reform me?"

She did not reply, went to the corner cupboard and got out a half-filled bottle, set it on the table beside him. Then he exploded.

"You know what's wrong. I come home after a week and find you out with Dudley!"

Judith was indignant. She had tried to keep her temper, but self-respect demanded that she speak.

She put down the dishes she was carrying and came back to confront Tex with a counter-attack.

"I might point out that the reason you knew I was out with Mr. Dudley was because you telephoned Sonia Winthrop from the airport the moment you landed. If I hadn't been with her, why could you have joined her?"

Judith's eyes were blazing. All the pent-up suffering of the last week seemed to erupt now.

Tex jeered: "So! My pet's jealous! It isn't like you, Judith!"

"No, it isn't like me. Usually I'm a mouse, a door-mat, and let you tramp on me. When you spent the evening before the big race with you went out joy-riding with her and left me flat, I didn't say anything. Just because I keep still, you seem to think I'm a fool. Well, I'm tired of that role! I'm through!"

She stopped for breath. All caution was thrown to the winds. If Tex walked out of the apartment and never came back, that was all right with her!

Judith loudly expressed that idea before she rushed into the bedroom and on through to lock herself in the bathroom. She stood still, staring at her face in the mirror in shocked silence. Her hair hung about her face in wisps. Her eyes were swollen and red. She tried to ston the sores which wracked her.

I'm a fool (she thought). I play right into her hands!

She forced herself to dry her eyes although she still gave great gasps, as she tried to fix her hair with trembling fingers. She put on dabs of powder which caked on her nose, and she managed some lipstick. Then she turned the key to the door and went back to Tex.

The living room was empty. She grabbed the door frame of the kitchenette and called Tex's name. He was gone! Judith collapsed on the davenport. He had gone to Sonia, and it served her right! This last indignity was harder to bear.

After a while there was the sound of a key in the door. Judith buried her tear-stained face in the pillow as Tex walked nochalantly into the room, threw a couple of packs of cigarettes on the table.

"We're fresh out," he remarked. The reaction was so terrific that Judith had an overpowering desire to laugh. It was too absurd.

Tex looked at her apprehensively, almost in terror. He hated hysterical women.

"We're behaving like a couple of gold fish swallows!" she managed to gasp.

Tex grinned, came over to her took her in his arms, burying his face in her black hair.

"I'm just a mug, honey!" "You're not!"

"Kiss me, Judith. I didn't mean to be nasty."

"I'm terrible, making such scenes." He bent to kiss the tilted member.

"You're a good kid. I've behaved badly these last few days. I didn't mean to."

The race this year got my goat. I was sure something would happen. I guess I just could not take it, that it had to be Marvin."

Judith tried hard to understand. "It's this dizzy flying game, Judith! Never knowing what's going to happen! It gets on a fellow's nerves. I'm through with racing! I almost swear it. As for the other, that's different. I love the air lines. Can fly 'em with my eyes shut!" Judith clung close to him. "Please, please, Tex, never race again—never!"

WARREN, Pa.—There's a gleam in the eye of Fish Chief Douglas Kropf, a Scotchman who hates to lose anything.

Meanwhile German planes began coming over at about 10 minute intervals. They headed inland and soon there was the distant sound of bomb explosions coming close together they sounded almost like a continual rumble.

The detonations bounced off the hillsides, echoing and re-echoing, to the sharp chatter of machine guns firing in the dogfights so high overhead the combatants could be seen only when they dived.

FRIENDS' RALLY TO END SUNDAY

Schedule for Concluding Sessions at Damascus Announced

Farewell messages of three missionaries, going to foreign fields soon, highlighted the morning session yesterday.

Those who will go to the field for the first time are Miss Anna Nixon of Cedarburg, Col., a graduate last year of the Cleveland Bible college who has been engaged in work as assistant pastor and evangelist, and Dr. and Mrs. Ezra DeVol of Columbus.

Miss Nixon will sail Dec. 13 from San Francisco for her first post in the mission in Central India.

Dr. DeVol and his young wife, Frances, with their small twin daughters, will sail Sept. 6 from Los Angeles, Calif., for the China field to work under the direction of the Foreign Missionary board of the meeting. Dr. DeVol recently gave up his medical practice in Columbus to go abroad. He is the son of the late Mrs. George and Isabel French DeVol. His mother was a native of Damascus, and the family is well known in this vicinity.

Missionaries Speak

Two returned missionaries gave short talks. They were Miss Esther E. Baird, a retired Friends missionary, a pioneer in the work for her church in India, and Dr. Effie D. McAfee, who recently returned from a visit with Friends, Rev. and Mrs. Charles Matti and Miss Ruth Mostrom, in the Nanking, China, station.

Announcement was made that an offering of $300 was received Thursday during gospel service in response to an appeal for aid to stranded missionaries in nine countries engaged in the world's wars, and for the relief of refugees in China.

Mrs. Curtis Ellett of Damascus, corresponding secretary of the foreign missionary board, announced that a gift of $285 had been received as a bequest from the late Charles H. Atkinson of Brookings, S. D., a former resident of Damascus, for use in the board's regular work.

Various other reports presented during the morning session included:

Treasurer of the Foreign Missionary society, Charles D. Roberts of Pomona, N. C., 52nd annual report of the China mission, sent to the meeting by Rev. Matti in Nanking; 44th annual report of the India mission, Rev. Everett L. Cattell, former Alliance pastor.

Treasurer of the American Friends India mission, Miss Carrie B. Wood of Oregon; treasurer of the China Friends mission, Rev. Matti; superintendent of literature, Mrs. Blanche G. Cox of East Cleveland.

Reports from Auxiliaries

Roane; superintendent of junior work, Mrs. A. J. Fryhoff of Newport News, Va.; superintendent of public meetings, Mrs. Lulu Mosher of Cardington.

Estimates of funds to be used this next year in missionary work were as follows: China, $11,130; India, $13,940; expenses of traveling and outgoing missionaries, $4,650.

Yesterday's program also included: 7:30 a. m., committee meetings; 8 a. m., young people's service with Rev. Dallas MacIntosh of Marengo, as speaker; 9 a. m., general session; 10 a. m., Children's daily service.

Restore Meeting House
A report was received from the committee on publicity for the restoration of the yearly meeting house at Mt. Pleasant, which the Ohio State Historical society is seeking to restore completely as a state memorial.

The clerk introduced Richard A. Fatig, district superintendent of state memorials of Ohio, from New Philadelphia, who spoke of the work of the late Lewis Lupton of Mt. Pleasant on behalf of the restoration as a memorial to early Friends.

Reports of the Bible school committee were received. Rev. Charles S. Ball of Smithfield introduced Clarence L. Cosand of Damascus, superintendent of the meeting Bible school department, who spoke on "The Mission of the Sunday School."

Musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, by a quartet of boys from the young people's group of the yearly meeting opened last evening's gospel service, which was the annual Christian Endeavor or young people's program.

Trumpet number and a vocal arrangement were presented by Richard Chambers of Damascus, Joseph Starbuck of Salem, Lindsey Osborne of Cleveland and Paul Williams, a native of China.

Rev. Amos Henry, pastor of the Friends church in Damascus presided, introducing Rev. Fryhoff, Christian Endeavor conference evangelist, who spoke on "Spiritual Stability."

Discusses Training
Rev. Fryhoff spoke of the responsibility of adequately training the young men and women of the church today, who will become representatives of the "church of tomorrow." He urged elder members of the church to perform their duties and privileges in the work and to live their lives as an example to the young people "that true religion and faith has reality as well as spirituality."

Mass Production of Planes Urged By Defense Chief

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—Army and navy fighting planes, declares William S. Knudsen, chairman of the national defense advisory committee, must be narrowed to a few types to speed up production.

"Too many factories are wasting their time on a lot of different types of planes," he said. "Over in Germany they just tell the Dornier people to keep turning out Dornier 17's as fast as they can. That's why they can build 2,000 airplanes a month."

Knudsen and Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, army air corps chief, inspected the world's fastest fighting plane and another ship, the world's largest fighting plane, before leaving today for San Diego to look over a third craft, another giant bomber, being built there for the army.

The world's largest bomber, a 140,000 pound Douglas B-19 ship, which will have a maximum flying range of 7,000 miles, is nearing completion at Santa Monica and will be ready for flying tests this fall.

Arnold and Knudsen also inspected a sleek Lockheed P-38 twin-engine interceptor pursuit ship designed for a speed of 450 miles an hour but declared capable of 500.
